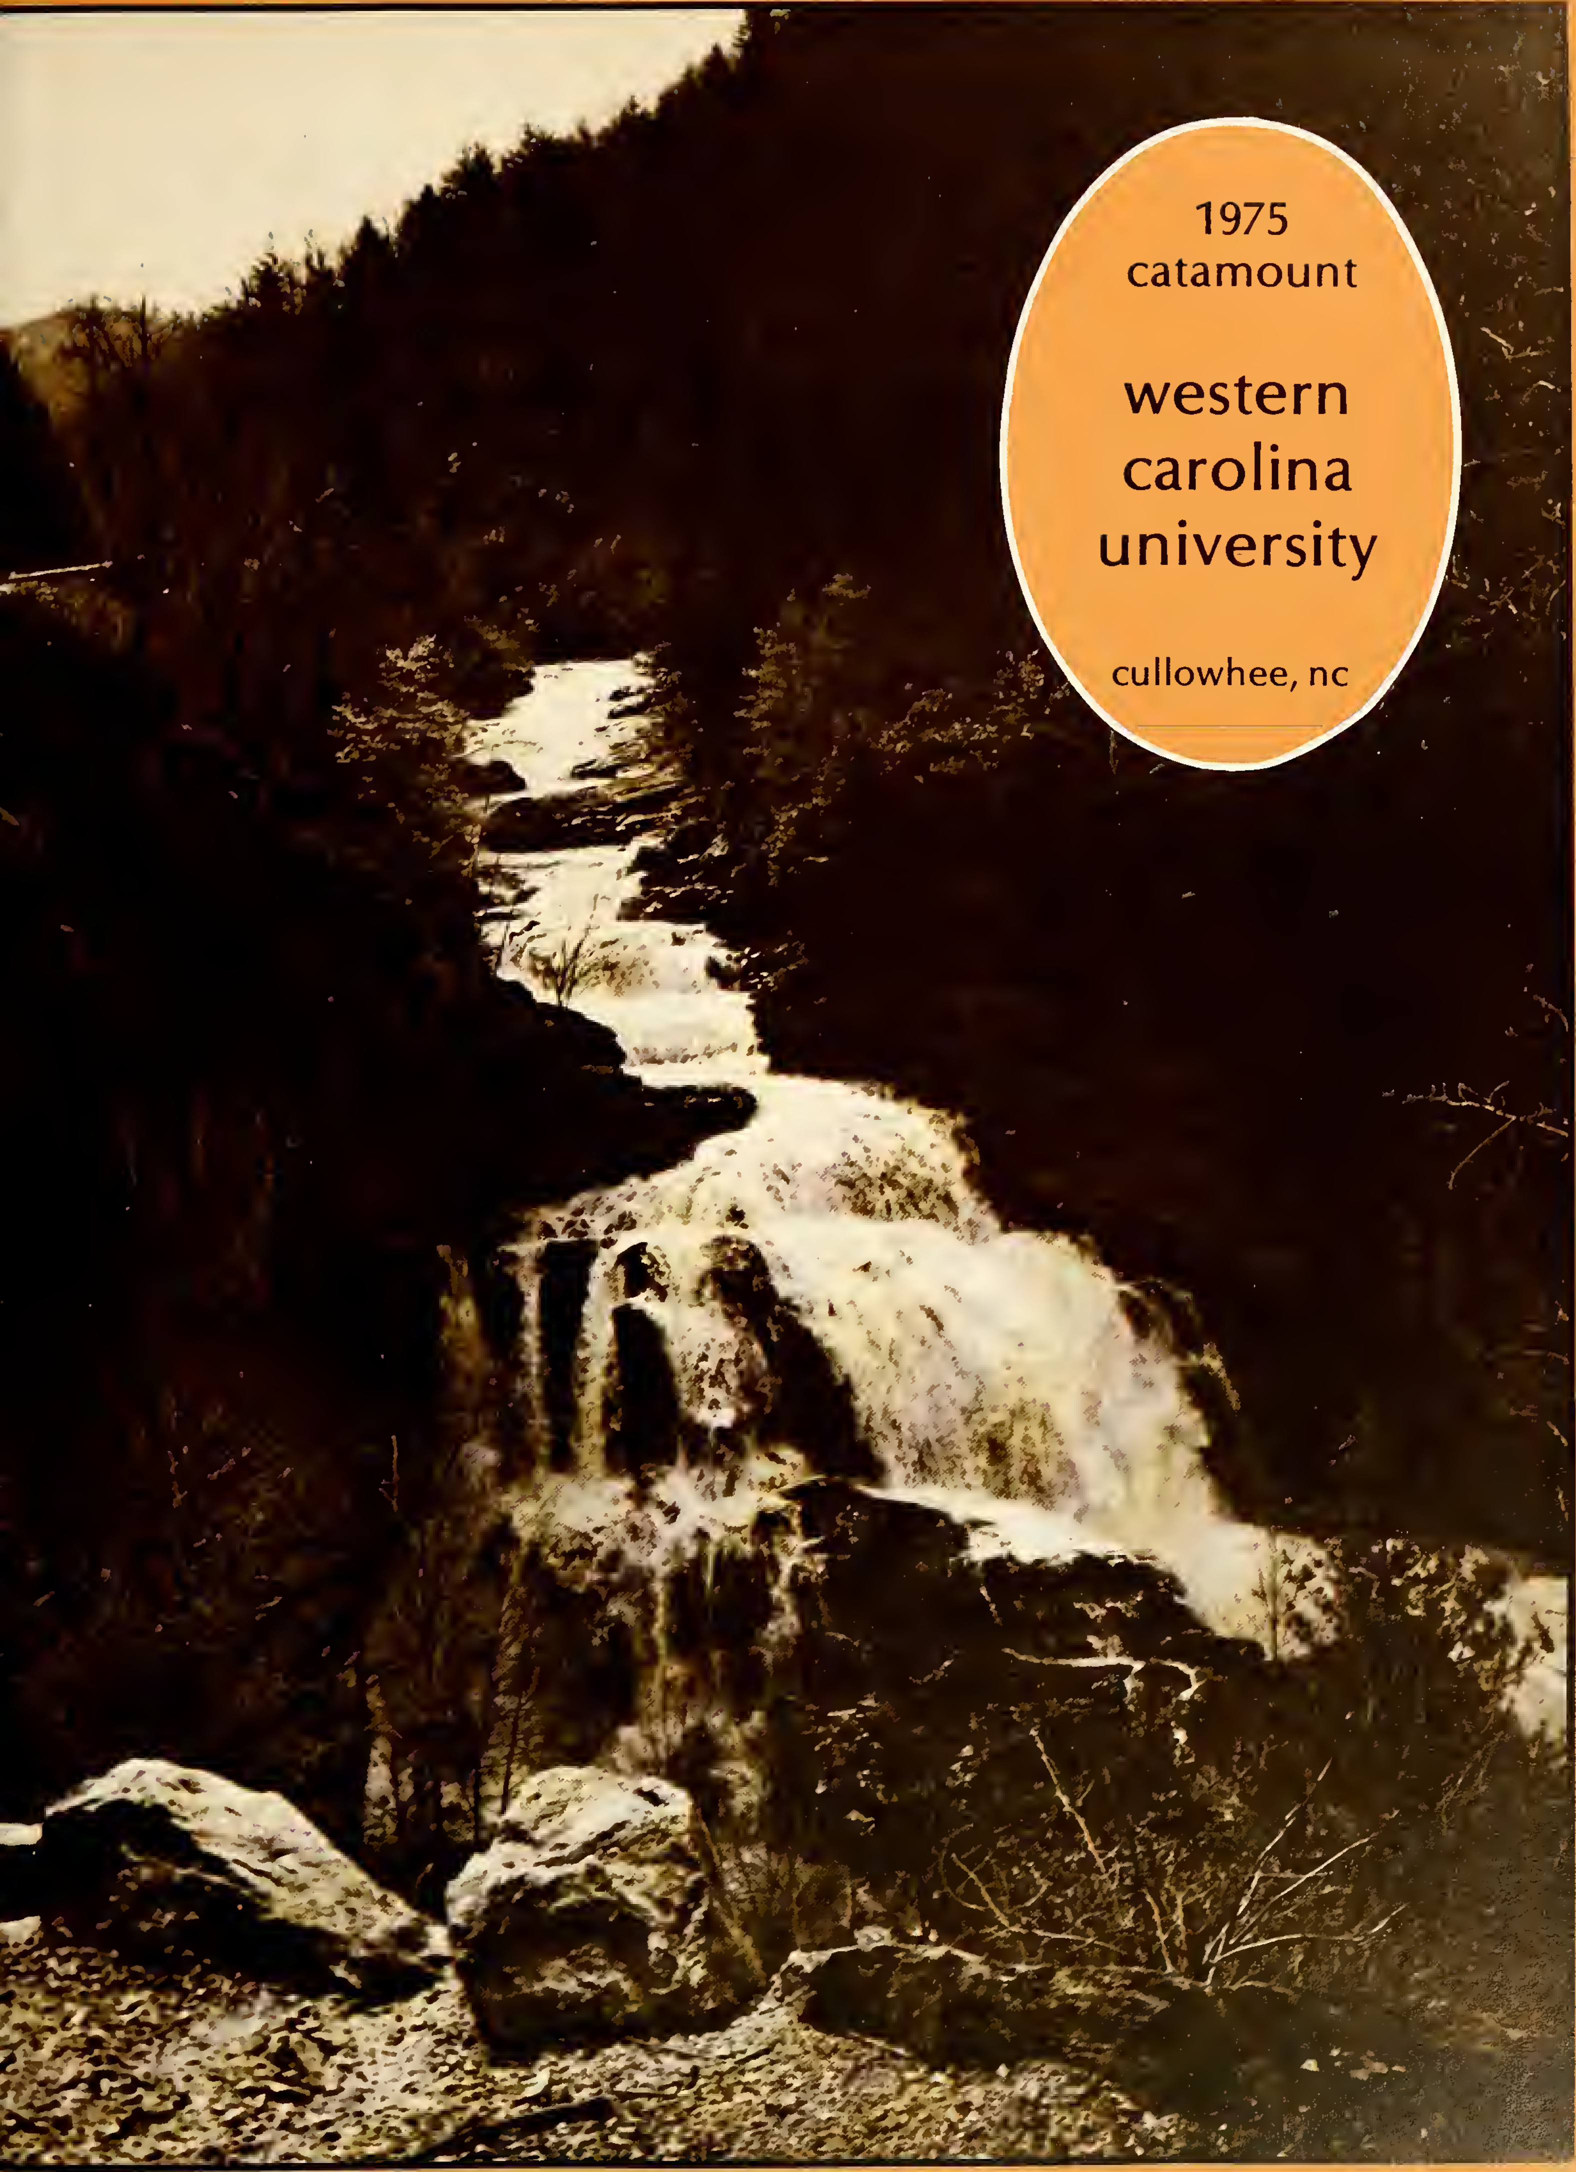
western carolina university

cullowhee, nc



what was cullowhee?

eighty-five years have passed since the beginning of a dream — a dream that is now a realization and a growing university. this dream belonged to robert lee madison, the founder of western carolina university, and thus our story begins . . .

through a series of events, madison found himself accepting an offer to teach at the cullowhee school in 1889. he, as the lone teacher, devised a curriculum suitable for the primary through advanced students. although the first year began with only small children, madison was not discouraged. in the next two years enrollment increased and thus did the staff; madison then applied for a charter of organization in 1891, and the school had a name — cullowhee high school.

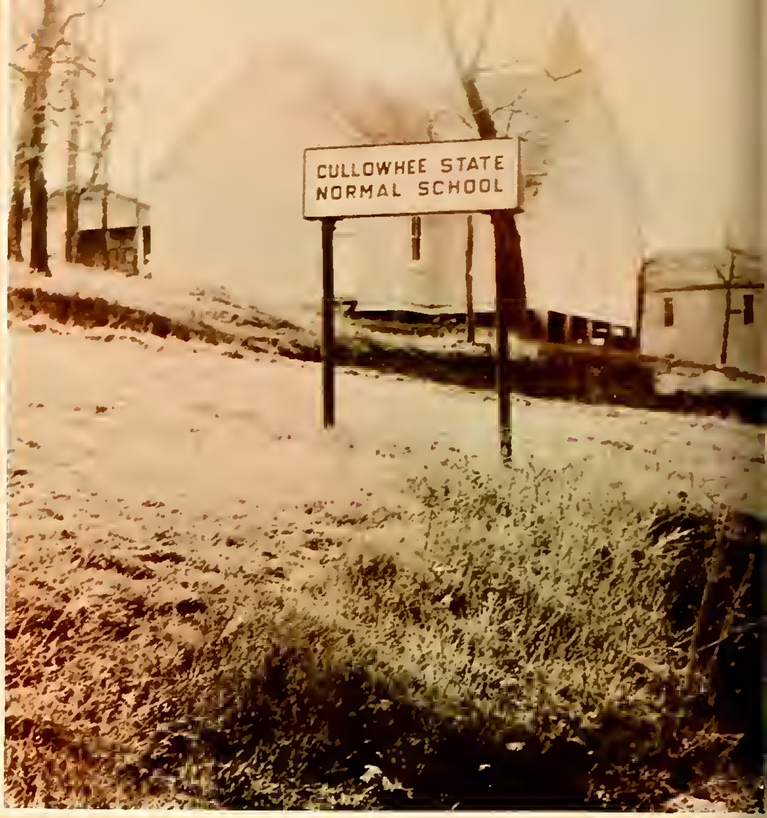
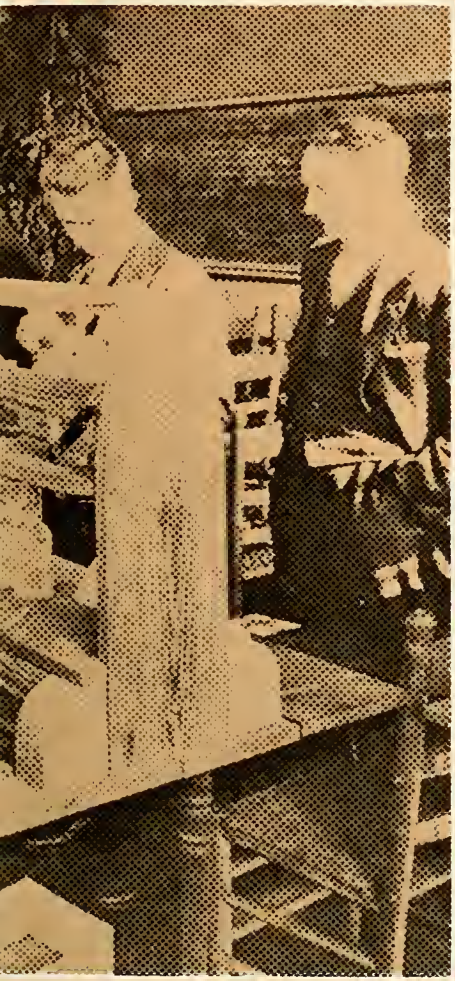
in the year 1893, the school expanded its curriculum and building, adding the "normal department". it wasn't until twelve years later in 1905 that the school became known as cullowhee normal and industrial school. in 1924 the college's first quarterly bulletin was issued, the cullowhee state normal bulletin, just one year before the school's name was changed from cullowhee normal and industrial school to cullowhee state normal school. the new title, approved in 1925, was to serve two purposes — to eliminate the misleading term "industrial", which was not provided for in the curriculum, and to add "state" to clarify the recent elimination of the high school from the institution. the school's purpose now was to prepare teachers for the public schools of north carolina.



cullowhee quickly developed a substantial curriculum offering students a well-rounded education. in the pictures below are busy students as they participate in gym, lab and home economics classes, the two girls on the left, stella cowan and mary louise russell, wrote the first two episodes of a pageant of western north carolina which was presented at commencement.



in the past years, buildings have come and gone as the people have, and yet a quiet spirit thrives on. here in the 1920's the house directly below once stood on what is now the site of bird administration building. because of a lack in fire protection, it burned one morning — students tried to help but they could only save the family's household goods. the cullowhee baptist church began as the building at bottom of page. the group at the right is the piedmont club of 1927, which was a means of promoting student recruitment for the school.

as the school continued to grow, questions of making the two year normal school into a four year institution were raised. the enrollment continued to grow and after much thought, planning and necessary actions, the school became a four-year college known as western carolina teacher's college in march of 1929.

many of us say the word "cullowhee" in amazing wonder, but it has an interesting origin. it generally means "white lily" or "the valley of the lilies." this refers to the atamasco lily, a plant that is rare in the mountain region, but was discovered flourishing in one small area on the western bank of the cullowhee creek. here it had grown since the earliest knowledge of man. it is believed that the cherokee called it cullowhee.

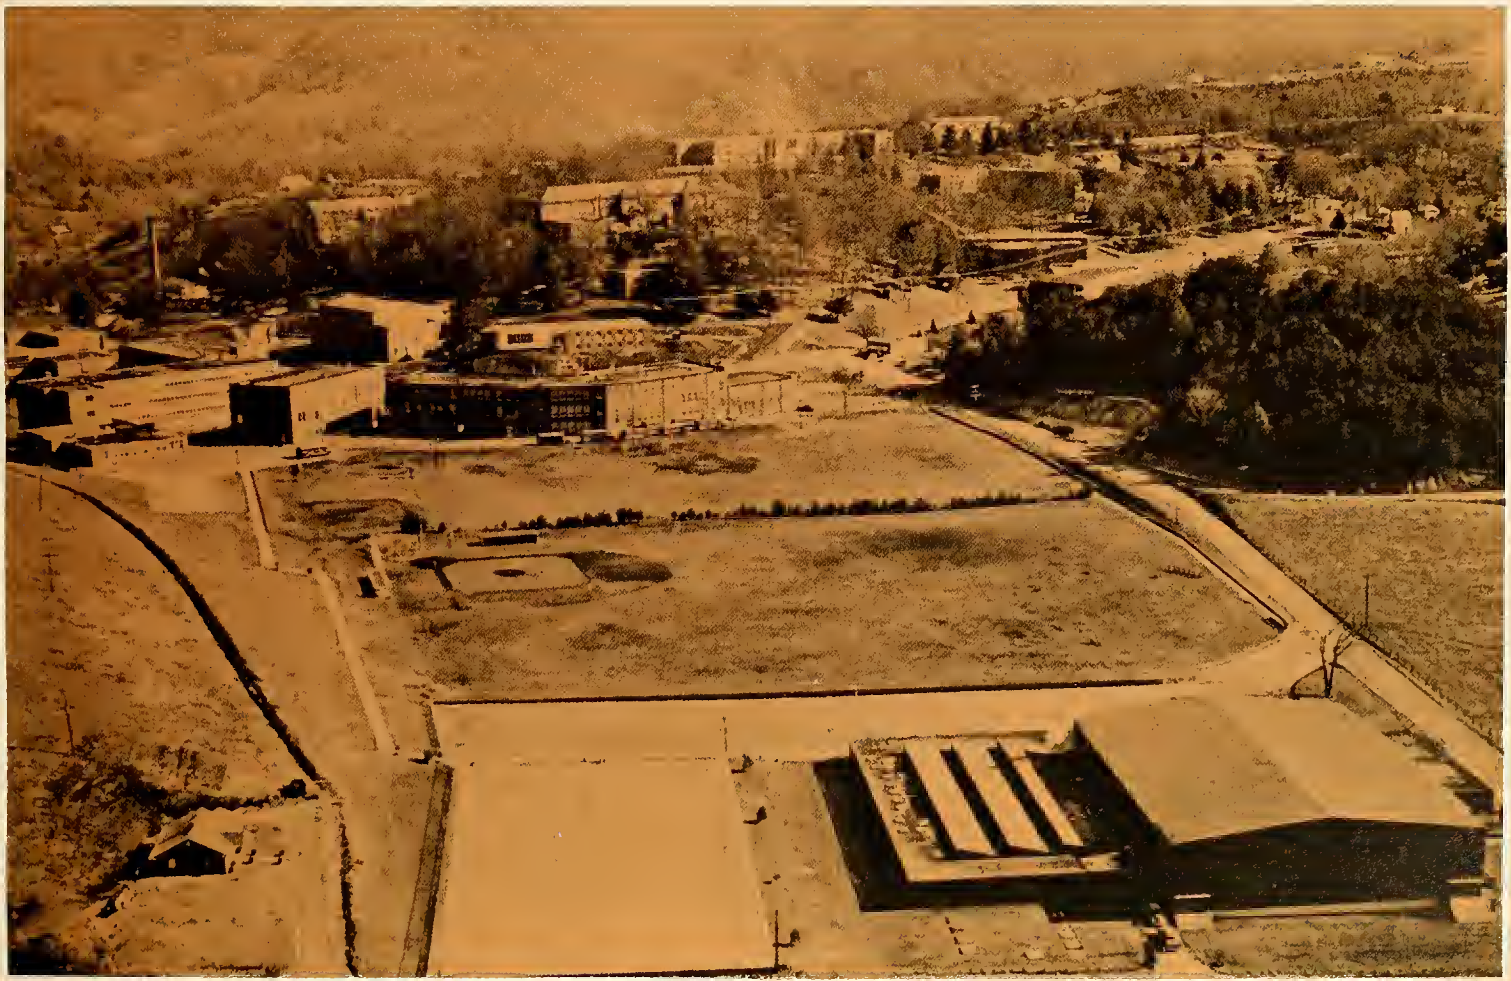
many people were responsible for the continuous and fruitful growth of this institution. a man that gave countless hours, interest and talents to western was the college's third president, hiriam tyram hunter. president hunter had a very sensitive value of record keeping. he was the first president that kept complete records of his entire administration. president hunter served western carolina from 1923 to 1947; twenty-four years of dedication to carry on a dream.

student involvement in many areas helped western carolina grow. this can be seen here in the girls glee club and the college band. as western grew, its graduation classes grew. people came and people went leaving a part of themselves here that bettered the school.

within the following twenty-four years the college grew, prospered and changed. these years saw a new highway linking sylva, cullowhee and glenville. the enrollment increased yearly and graduation classes became larger. new buildings were necessary to accommodate the school's growth in students, faculty and curriculum. this small but ever-growing college survived the depression and numerous problems, but solutions followed. Styles changed, lasting friendships formed, five presidents were known, a fiftieth anniversary celebrated . . . change was inevitable, and once again as the school changed, the school's name changed to western carolina college in 1953.

these pictures portray western in the 50's and the 60's. much progress took place in the next decade, as we can see from the view of the campus taken in 1960.



the school's progress had not yet come to a close; change was to occur again and again. in 1967 the institution was designated as a regional university and was now known as western carolina university. another step forward was taken in 1971 when the state legislature reorganized higher education in north carolina, and western became a constituent institution of the university of north carolina on july 1, 1972.

in 1974 we remember the 85th anniversary of western carolina university with a founder's day celebration and the inauguration of our chancellor, dr. h.f. robinson. many people came to be a part of this eventful day's activities. eighty-five years have passed; a dream is now a thriving, growing university.

the pictures portraying the history of western carolina university are courtesy of the university archives. the information for the history of the university was gathered from the history of western carolina college, by w.e. bird.

a great football team is not supposed to open its season by losing without scoring a touchdown; or count on a defense that has been rebuilt around only seven lettermen; or depend on several freshmen to be first unit players; or send a quarterback, who had never started a college game onto the field to lead its offense against one of the nation's best defensive teams in the game of the year. but the cats did all of these and fashioned a super 9-2 season, probably the finest of western's 41 years of football.

the western carolina soccer team had a disappointing season posting a 1-10-2 record. this season was the worst in the history of soccer here at western. several starters were injured during the season which left less experienced players in positions which were hard to fill. a lack of team spirit and poor attitudes also contributed to the losing effort. hopefully the 1975 season will be an improvement. six starters will be returning and many fine reserve players on the 1974 squad will be filling in the new openings created by graduations.

to say the past basketball season in cullowhee was unique, would be regarded as an understatement by anyone who followed the cats. the catamounts of the past winter became wcu's first basketball team in three years to turn in a winning record. the uniqueness if found in the unusual, sometimes bizarre, events that blend to produce a 15-11 record. how many teams have changed coaches at mid-season and ended the season a winner? the '74-'75 cats did. jim hartbarger watched his team jump off to a fine 4-1 record in the opening two weeks of the season, including a win over the jim gudger coached east texas state team, and then watched that same team win only one more time in the next seven tries. he resigned january 12 after five and one-half seasons and handed a team with five and seven record over to fred conley, the man he had hired only six months earlier as his top assistant. conley stepped up and as suddenly as the cats had turned sour in december, they turned sweet again in january and february. what conley did is speculative, but the catamounts began playing on both ends of the floor, together. they won on the road as well as in reid gymnasium and at the end of the season, conley's half-season record read 10-4. the mid-season change in coaches was only one of the oddities. the '74-'75 cats had the distinction of being the only team in the nation to play last year's ncaa national championship finalists — n.c. state and marquette.

david thompson and the wolfpack took out their frustrations of an upset by wake forest on the awe-struck catamounts. however, a late season performance before a capacity crowd in milwaukee helped to erase some of the embarassment suffered in raleigh. "conley's cats" pushed the ninth ranked marquette warriors to the wire before losing 63-43. however, what conley, the cats, and their followers will remember most is the brand of basketball they coached, played and watched in the last six weeks of the season. kirby thurston was the keystone of the cats offense as he used his 6'9", 240 pound frame to consistently put in over 20 points and pull down a dozen rebounds a game. when the cats needed the key baskets late in the season, they gave the ball to albert toomer, a senior who had not lived up to his all-star billing earlier in the season. conley underscored it all when he said, "we were a team . . . and that was the difference late in the season."

wcu's baseball team produced a fine 15-8-1 record with victories over several major opponents, but at the same time, felt somewhat disappointed when the season ended as the inclimate weather potentially cost the cats a post-season playoff berth and a shot at the best baseball record in the university's history. in all, fourteen games were rained out. coach bill haywood's '75 squad was the best hitting wcu team in at least a dozen years as it compiled an eye-opening .304 average.

the 1975 season also produced wcu's first bonafide all american association of college baseball coaches who named him to their college division all star squad.

entertainment for the pageant was excellent. the cullowhee cloggers delighted the audience as well as marc pruett, master of ceremonies, and his band. debbie buchanan, reigning miss catamount, sang several songs. miss north carolina susan griffin was a special guest. she captured the audience as she sang "with a song in my heart."

all the girls worked very hard but only one could win. our new miss catamount, cathi mc cord was crowned by debbie buchanan — after cathi got over the shock of her winning.

who's who among students in american universities and colleges is a nationally recognized honor. selection begins with nominations by students and faculty. nominees prepare an evaluation sheet with numerical values assigned to academic standing, extracurricular activities and honors. a committee of students and faculty then makes the selection for recommendation to the national office.

E. J. WHITMIRE STADIUM

with the fear of rain gone and the hot sun shining down, the class of 1975 was the first to graduate in the e.j. whitmire stadium. dr. harold delaney, president of manhattanville college, offered his remarks and congratulations. as chancellor robinson declared each school 1975 graduates of western carolina university, cheers rang. four years of hard work, fun and friendships drawing to a close . . . a segment of life ending so another might begin.
